

The latest evidence was gathered from the story of Marie Jewell, 17-year-old girl, who was found by the police after it is alleged she had been making the rounds of loop hotels.

Her story involved the Normandie, Lombard, National and King Edward. It is rumored that one of the first-class hotels is also named in the girl's story, but the state's attorney's office will not make the name public until the charge is verified. She is said also to have accused a wealthy man of taking her to this hotel.

"The most dangerous part of this traffic," said Hogan, "is that it is usually very young girls that are taken to these places after a flirtation along State st. The old-timers will not take a chance of coming into the loop. The stories of the girls in the juvenile court are the same. A well-dressed men, a flirtation, a dinner with a few cocktails on the side, and then the hotel. It might interest students of economy to know that most of the girls tell stories of low wages in department stores and factories."

It is believed by the state's attorney that many of the hotels are taken a chance through the belief that the lid is off on account of election time.

EITEL FRIEDRICH PREPARES FOR DASH TO SEA

Washington, April 1.—Belief that German converted cruiser would eventually intern is giving way to a feeling that she may try to smash her way through neck of bottle to open sea. Newport News reports that administration is cognizant of German commander's plans were denied by Secretary Daniels.

Eitel is filling her bunkers with selected coal. Her worn out boiler tubes have been replaced with new ones and she could probably make better than 15 knots.

MERELY COMMENT

It's bad enough to kick a man when he's down.

But it's even worse than that to jump on a man and stir up public prejudice against him when he is about to go on trial on a criminal charge.

The fight on Lorimer in this campaign is cowardly for that reason.

Lorimer is down politically, and financially, and some of his old political pals are taking a kick at him.

Roger Sullivan ought to stop it for decency's sake, even if not for the sake of his old-time friendship.

Lorimer is human. So are the members of his family. He is about to go on trial for his liberty. Isn't that trouble enough for one family?

Kick Thompson all you please. He's big, has money and can stand it. But give Lorimer a show for his white alley.

Nobody ever became a hero kicking a man when he was down.

But politics is a rotten game with the professionals. Winners get the bouquets, but when their usefulness is ended they get kicks.

There's one thing good about the campaign, anyhow:

Neither Sweitzer nor Thompson has been proven to be a crook.

It is fair to assume that neither is as bad as he is painted by his political enemies.

By the way, why should men become enemies in politics?

Don't forget the aldermen in excitement over candidates for mayor.

Pick out the best man, the one YOU think is best. His party politics cuts no ice.

This isn't a presidential election.
